ABR Adds Lines

ABR Wholesalers has added WeatherKing furnaces and air conditioners and Southwark sheetmetal to its growing line of products.

WeatherKing, owned by Rheem, is a line of basic furnaces and air conditioners designed for home builders. The line includes an 80% and 90% efficient furnace and a 10 S.E.E.R. air conditioning condensing unit.

The WeatherKing line is sold as a value-alternative that enjoys the benefits of high-efficiency at lower cost. All parts carry a five-year limited warranty. Heat exchangers in both furnaces have a 20 year limited warranty.

The 80PJ 80% Upflow/Horizontal units accommodate most installation requirements and have heating capacities from 50,000 to 150,000 BTU/Hr.

The 90RJ 90% Upflow furnaces have heating efficiencies up to 92 percent A.F.U.E. and heating capacities from 45,000 to 120,000 BTU/Hr.

The nominal 10.0 S.E.E.R. air conditioner with nominal 1.5 to 5.0 ton cooling capacities, is sold as a low cost cooling unit.

If you install HVAC equipment in new homes, check with your ABR representative for all the WeatherKing details.

Southwark products include the company's Air-Tite takeoffs. These are positive fittings that are installed as complete units. They are engineered for making round takeoff connections on sheet metal and duct board.

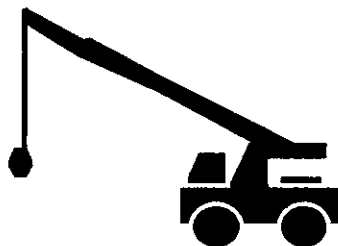

Air-Tite take offs have a neoprene gasket with an adhesive backing for easy installation. The backing is protected with paper for storage and handling to keep dust from the adhesive.

The same fuel-saving take off can be used for either steel or duct board. The paper is just peeled off and attached to the plenum with sheet metal screws, making the job nice and neat.
